I really enjoy watching The Olympic Games. The energy, drama, passion, grit, and overflow of emotion are unparalleled in sports. The great highs of a dream fulfilled and the despair of a dream failed are both expressed in tears. Athletes work intensely hard for many years, preparing for the moment when they will toe the line, looking into the eyes and hearts of other competitors, ready to launch at the crack of the gun. These participants are never alone, as they bring their families, friends, coaches, teammates, and countries into their lives and onto the edge of their seats. I am particularly moved by seeing an athlete succeed whereupon the TV camera immediately cuts to a scene of family and friends crowded together in some remote place. What happens next is predictable, yet the outburst of pure, unadulterated JOY is something I never tire of witnessing. The scene of yelling, hugging, high-fiving, arms pumping, and legs jumping so high that they defy gravity is a thrill shared with me.

In like manner, our team of highly trained, skilled, and committed staff, “moved by compassion,” act upon an Olympic-level calling: a motivation to serve.

In the parable of The Good Samaritan, as Jesus shares in Luke 10, we find a man beaten and badly wounded, left on the side of the road to die. “Moved by compassion,” a Samaritan comes to his rescue. Our staff are today’s Good Samaritans, who recognize a need, are moved by the same compassion, and come to the aid of the broken. We are not Olympic athletes and will likely never medal at The Games. However, each of our staff is driven by Christian principles of kindness, care, selflessness, love, and compassion. In so doing, we medal at providing compassionate care for our uninsured, homeless, and poor neighbors. Day in and day out, we perform our jobs with the understanding that God has called us to the highest level of service. We don’t pump our fists nor beat our chests in victory. Rather, our victories are experienced in each exam room and through every encounter when we relieve pain, give a hug, share a prayer, or offer a word of hope. These may seem like trivial things, but to our patients, they are huge victories, victories which change lives.

As our partner in this work and mission you, too, are “moved by compassion” when you recognize the need and act by giving what you are able.

I am eternally grateful!

Senior Leadership Team

Changes in 2021 afforded us an exciting opportunity to focus on our leadership team and intentionally evaluate the efficacy and inclusivity of our organizational model. The result of this effort was a flattened structure that allowed for growth opportunities for longstanding employees, improved communication and coordination across departments and programs, increased diversity, and ultimately better care for our patients and staff. These new leaders not only bring their individual expertise but, in most cases, years of experience at the clinic. We benefit from their passion and deep institutional knowledge and look forward to their continued leadership, taking Good Sam to new heights of excellence.

From Our Board Chair

Dear Good Samaritan Community,

I am incredibly proud of the accomplishments and the commitment of The Good Samaritan Health Center throughout the past year. The dedicated and talented staff and volunteers of Good Sam were able to serve more than 6,700 patients with their various health needs in 2021. Not only did they provide dental, mental, physical, and preventative health care, these heroes also administered 15,119 COVID tests both in-house and through our partnership with CVS Health. This partnership was a two-fold blessing, allowing us to help people in the community, as well as further develop trust with people who were previously unfamiliar with Good Sam.

2021 marked another successful year in fundraising, with $3,226,085 given by more than 400 individual donors, churches, and partner organizations. These generous funds allowed us to continue to serve the community with the highest quality health care and provided the means by which we could be nimble and quick in responding to their most critical needs.

2022 will mark the launch of many exciting programs, including the Y at Good Sam, a partnership with the YMCA of Metro Atlanta operating out of the new wellness facility on our campus that was built in 2020. The Y at Good Sam will serve patients and community members through individual and group exercise programs. This program will allow our continued growth in the community through exercise and fellowship.

We also are looking forward to the Grand Opening of the Farm Market in April 2022. This event will showcase our new facility to the community and all our generous donors who made it possible. The Farm at Good Sam, which produced almost 8,000 pounds of healthy, certified naturally grown fruits and vegetables in 2021, will be able to sell this produce and other quality products to a greater number of people through the new Farm Market.

2021 was a successful year for The Good Samaritan Health Center, and we are looking forward to continuing our mission of spreading Christ's love through quality healthcare to those in need in the Greater Atlanta area in 2022.

Sincerely,

Friday Clinic Encounters

This year, I celebrated my 11-year anniversary at Good Sam. Over the years, I have grown professionally, mentally, and spiritually. I have also learned to adapt my customer service skills based on the patients' needs, as well as personally adapting to and accepting changes. During one of our Friday Clinics, I met a young man seeking dental and mental health care. For some reason, this specific patient captured my attention. I clearly remember his first day at Good Sam: he was anxious, impatient, and didn't trust us. I could tell his past experiences weren't the best because he seemed to have a wall up to protect himself. Despite this, I could see a different person. To me, he was someone with a genuine heart smile and was super friendly. Trusting my motherly instinct, I began to develop a genuine friendship with him. I always look forward to seeing him every Friday and worry when I don't. Over time, he began to trust us and his mental, medical and dental health all began to improve as he became a part of the Good Sam family. Along with the growth and experiences that I gained over the past 11 years, I realize that the absolute highlight of my career at Good Sam has been acquiring love, compassion, and humility towards patients like him. These patients encourage me to continue to serve all Good Sam patients and my coworkers. His friendship has reminded me how fortunate I am to give back to my community. I know that every day I show up to work, I remove one more barrier to healthcare access.

385 Free Rides With Uber Health

One of the greatest rewards for my team this year was when Good Samaritan was gifted with free Uber Health rides for our patients. We were thrilled that acquiring transportation was no longer a worry. It made new patients confident in scheduling their appointments at a time most convenient for them and helped existing patients not miss their appointments. This might seem like such a simple feat, but it was life-changing for some of our patients and truly helped to remove a barrier for low-income families to be able to access quality healthcare.

“I leave Good Sam with a feeling of accomplishment.”

“I am so thankful for the opportunity God has given me to be a part of this awesome ministry and Good Sam Team! I leave Good Sam with a feeling of accomplishment knowing that the dental department is in a much better place than when I arrived in 2015.

Please pray for Dr. King as she transitions into the department and assumes leadership this year. I believe she is the right person to lead the department into the future.

I look forward to seeing all God has in store for Good Sam in the days ahead!”

I can do all things through Christ who strengthens me. Phillipians 4:13.

This scripture has been my “go-to” in life. It has seen me through many challenging times, and it is my belief that this is the scripture God used to lead me to Good Sam. Not only was I moved by the mission and service of Good Sam, but I was moved by the fact that those things are actually put into action. Good Sam is in a community that I am very familiar with. My church home is located on Ralph David Abernathy near Joseph Lowery Blvd, not far at all from the center.

As a child of a minister, I have always held the heart of service. I entered dental school with this goal in mind, and therefore, I became a National Health Service Corp Scholar very early on. As a NHSC scholar, I worked in an underserved community for four years. It seems as if four years quickly turned into 15 years and counting. It has been my career to serve those less fortunate. I feel it was meant for me to find Good Sam.

Since joining Good Sam, I have had nothing but good things to say. I welcomed the opportunity to spend time with Dr. Sieweke while he was here. His guidance was an amazing asset to my transition and one that will stay with me. I love the group of people that I work with every day! It is not often that one can say that. I have worked in a number of community health organizations, but there is something special about Good Sam. This group has been welcoming and kind, with a willingness to work and guide me through this transition with a positive attitude and an open heart to new ideas. I am moved every day by the commitment of Good Sam to the community, through feeding and treating the homeless and providing state of the art healthcare and dental care to offering fresh food through the Market. It is truly a full circle of health experience. The patients I have encountered are grateful and understanding of the value of what they are receiving.

I am excited by all of the work Good Sam has done and by the possibilities of what more we can do. I am ready to spread the word and mission of Good Sam to this community and beyond, and I look forward to leading the dental department in becoming a shining example of excellent dental care in Community Health.

HelplineSOS Volunteers

COVID-19 allowed me to serve my local community in a way I could have never imagined. I first joined Good Sam's HelplineSOS team to help others defend themselves and their families from the virus, but after witnessing the dedicated compassion of our team, I deeply desired to do more for Good Sam. I was then given the opportunity to get involved in their internship program, where I began to foster relationships with the staff. Now working there full time as a medical assistant, I have engaged with families from all walks of life, including a portion of Atlanta's homeless population, who have forever changed my outlook on healthcare.

For example, the language barrier. Before working at Good Sam, I never realized the hindrance it can cause for our patients seeking specialist care. To combat this, we personally communicate with the specialty care clinics to schedule our patients' appointments and confirm a translator will be provided for them. Another obstacle for our patients is navigating financial assistance programs. My coworkers and I break down the complicated applications with our patients to ensure them of what they need to provide as documentation. I am beyond grateful for our case managers, Monica and Erika, who work tirelessly to assist patients with specific needs such as stable housing or applying for government assistance. Compassionate acts of this caliber are why I love working at Good Sam. We are a family that is dedicated to serving our patients to the best of our ability, and we all bring unique gifts to the table to provide them with the medical care they deserve.

My journey thus far has allowed me to cultivate relationships with people that are passionate about making a change in their community. My experience at Good Sam has provided me with a solid foundation for my education in the medical field and has shed light on communities suffering from a lack of healthcare. Good Sam continues to prepare me to serve marginalized groups in an effort to bridge the health disparity gap, and I promise to dedicate my future career to providing quality healthcare to those that need it most.

The story of the Good Samaritan is intriguing and one that should be emulated by every human. It takes one to care for one, and the initiative of this clinic goes out to care for those that are in need. I was fortunate to get into the internship program through volunteering with the helpline, and this allowed me to see the work firsthand. Going through training and immersing in this non-profit has given me the goal of catering to less fortunate communities when I begin my medical career. At the end of my senior year, I was offered a position to continue as a medical assistant at Good Sam, which I gladly accepted with open arms.

compassion when I got this job. This has been a hard time for everyone, but creating a safe environment for our patients has been a genuine goal of mine in this season.

Knowing that our patients are getting the best care through different initiatives and various financial assistance programs, where they pay only what they are able, is overwhelmingly amazing. It only takes the compassion of one to help, as the Good Samaritan did, and I am glad there are so many of us at Good Sam being moved by compassion to help.

Not only are we Good Samaritans to patients, we extend the same genuine aura to ourselves. Working here has shown me that you can enjoy what you do and have fun with those that you do it with. ## 276 Nutritional Counseling Encounters

Nutrition is more than just providing food for health, wellness, and growth, and over the past year, I have learned, from my patients, that nutrition is nothing without compassion.

The pandemic has been a challenge for everyone, especially for Good Sam patients whose health is immunocompromised. How safe is it to shop at the local grocery store? Ordering groceries online is not feasible if you are living below the national poverty level or English isn't your first language. Thank God for the Market at Good Sam and its affordable vegetables and herbs. Patients have the opportunity to supplement their meals with fresh vegetables from the Market before or after their appointments. During this chaotic time, I felt helpless to make a real difference, but compassion stepped in, and I learned to lean in, listen to their stories, pray with them and remind them Good Sam is here for support.

During the pandemic, a patient named Marcia reached out to me and asked if I would change our monthly nutrition sessions to weekly sessions. Marcia is living with type-2 diabetes, hypertension, high cholesterol, and depression. When I agreed to meet with her, I didn't realize then that our weekly nutrition sessions would help her attain and maintain her goals beyond her nutritional status. She slowly started to implement the simple strategies we talked about during our sessions. Gradually, the severe lower back pain that woke her up at night significantly reduced after she started losing weight, about 15 pounds and counting! At one of our nutrition sessions, she was delighted to finally fit into one of her mother's uniquely designed dresses she hadn't tried on in a long time because it was too tight. She started keeping track of her blood glucose levels through an app on her phone, and within a few months, her A1C levels went down. As her weight, blood glucose levels, and inches decreased—her self-confidence, energy levels, and nutrition knowledge increased. She was able to reach and exceed her health goals during the past year not only because of my help but also because of her unyielding determination. She looks beautiful in her dress!

Jerlyn Jones
Registered Dietitian

A spirit of compassion guides all we do at Good Sam, and it's definitely what motivates my counseling work. Compassion is a feeling, but it also calls us to action. Every day I show up to work with the hope of offering something that will make a difference in the lives of my clients.

My work with clients is very rewarding, but it is not without its challenges. I regularly sit with people who share devastating accounts of things that are causing mental and emotional turmoil in their lives, and they are unsure of how they will make it. The impact of various losses resulting from the pandemic has added another layer of complexity to lives that were already nearing the breaking point. I learn a lot from my clients. Week after week, I am in awe of those who keep pushing forward, and I celebrate the accomplishments they make along the way in spite of their hardships. Through my clients, I've learned that God has created us to be far more resilient than we know, and we have within us a remarkable capacity to persevere in the most trying of circumstances. These past two years more than illustrates this fact.

The National Alliance on Mental Illness reported that in 2020, 21% of U.S. adults (52.9 million people) experienced mental illness. The financial loss, death of loved ones, social isolation caused by the pandemic resulted in huge increases in the number of people reporting episodes of depression, anxiety, and addiction relapses throughout this country and all over the world.

Many who had never experienced mental health issues before found themselves in unfamiliar territory, struggling to find healthy ways to cope. I believe this global experience contributed to a greater understanding of the importance of mental health and further reduced the stigma surrounding going to counseling. Mental health advocates flooded the media regarding the need for more widespread mental health resources, and even celebrities were vocal about the personal impact of the pandemic on their lives, normalizing the need to reach out for help. "We're in this together" became the refrain that shifted us from largely individualistic perspectives toward the view that we are all better together. I see the fruits of this when my clients tell me they are not only prioritizing their own therapy but also recommending it to friends and family.

My hope is that we as a people, as a country, can keep this momentum going, spreading the message that our mental health is equally as important as our physical health. I ask you to please be prayerful about how you can contribute to our efforts to do just that here at the Good Samaritan.

As always, I thank you for your continued support!

I would frequent Good Sam to attend a mid-day fitness class. I never thought I would work for this organization, but what a wonderful opportunity God created for me. I am passionate about helping people reach their fitness goals, as I am an advocate for healthy eating and exercise. My position as the Market Manager at Good Sam allows me to walk in my purpose and educate people on nutrition and fitness.

Good Sam's farm is truly a hidden gem in Atlanta, and I am excited for it's growth and expansion. The Market is special because it offers organic produce at an affordable cost in a community that needs it. My interactions and conversations with our customers are informative. I share nutritional tips, facts, and recipes with our customers, and they appreciate it. I love listening to their farming stories of how they try to grow strawberries, herbs, etc., and even some of the trials they face along the way!

I love working for this organization because it is Christian-based. I love how we start our mornings with daily devotion. My work expands outside of The Farm and Market. My involvement with our Friday Clinic is a humbling experience, and I am happy to serve the people of this community. I knew that by working for a non-profit organization, I would help people, but Good Sam, in return, has helped me too.

Audrey Clark
Market Manager

It's a fact that the food we consume significantly impacts our health and in many cases, can control and even reverse many nutritional diseases. While most people realize this, often those at the most significant risk from nutritional diseases are not able to afford or have access to the foods they need. With that in mind, The Farm and Market are working to reverse that trend as we operate in the heart of an area of Atlanta, officially known as a food desert.

This past year, The Farm and Market continued to serve our community. Throughout the course of 2021, we were able to invite shoppers back to a regularly scheduled market season, hire a new market manager, and introduce beehives to the farm, all while moving towards the expansion of The Market.

This past market season began on the farm, allowing customers to see firsthand where their produce came from. Audrey Clark, our Market Manager, connected seamlessly with our shoppers through her personal journey and passion for wellness and healthy eating.

We were also gifted with funding to install three beehives and develop a bee apiary garden on the farm. We look forward to providing pure, local honey to our customers in spring 2022. The continued support from our volunteers and donors left us feeling well-positioned and inspired for the additional ways we will be able to provide for our customers in the next market year.

COVID-19 VACCINES

Vaccines
Administered

I remember when the fear and uncertainty of COVID-19 first struck in March 2020. I would come to work and go home with a sense of hopelessness and defeat because, at the time, I was uncertain what I could contribute to make things better for my family, community, and for Good Sam. I prayed about it and asked God to show me.

When news of the COVID-19 vaccine first came out, my initial thought was, "How did they develop this so fast?" I had so many questions, but like others, I was reluctant to ask. I was convinced that my family was not getting the vaccine. I remember getting an email from Breanna about Good Sam applying to become a Pandemic Vaccine Provider. Even throughout the application process and completing the required training, my mind was still made up. Of course, we were approved.

January 11, 2021, was the day we received our first shipment of COVID-19 vaccines, 100 doses of Moderna. The next day Breanna announced a staff training designed to help us educate and answer patient questions about the COVID-19 vaccine. After that session, I felt relieved. I felt a sense of clarity and was much more knowledgeable about the vaccine.

From The Frontline

January 13, 2021, was the first day that we gave COVID-19 vaccines at Good Sam. That day, I received my 1st dose. I felt a sense of peace. I knew that I had done the right thing. I couldn't let my guard down all the way, but I could breathe a little easier. As I reflected over the months between March 2020 and January 2021, I realized that this was the one thing that I could do to protect my family. This drove my compassion toward myself and in educating other hesitant people about the vaccination.

Throughout the last 13 months, I have been able to share my story with many people from diverse backgrounds and educate them on the vaccine. I have been vulnerable and, in doing so, allowed them to feel that their own emotions are valid. Compared to when this pandemic first started, I now know exactly what my part is in this fight. Being a part of the COVID vaccination clinics during the week and pop-up clinics in the community over the last year has been an absolute honor and pleasure.

Ericka Stanley, MHA
Wellness Director

2021 was another heavy year for our patients, who already disproportionately experience stress and trauma. They experienced deaths of loved ones, illness and hospitalizations, and the long-lasting impact of COVID-19. Our patients also dealt with greater financial insecurity, employment changes, housing changes, closing bus routes, and social isolation. Now, when patients come to the clinic, we aren't just treating diabetes or an abscessed tooth, but the pain of this past year. Our staff has also experienced the stress of managing life and work in a pandemic. From exposures and quarantine to childcare and school changes, the clinic becomes a place of both shared suffering and needed encouragement between staff and patients.

We often think of our mission as showing compassion to our patients, but throughout this second year of the pandemic, we have also been on the receiving end of compassion. I feel it when I botch a sentence in Spanish, and my patient gently offers a better way to express what I was hoping to convey. I experience compassion when I am behind on calling a patient with their lab results, but they answer the phone and immediately ask if we are all doing okay. I have lost count of the number of patients who have told me they are praying for the safety and health of our team. In spite of the burdens they carry, our patients continue to see us and love on us.

The encouragement from our patients, the support of our donors and volunteers, and our deep commitment to this mission allowed us to continue to meet the challenges of the pandemic head-on in 2021. A team of over 60 volunteers and staff members responded to over 16,500 calls on our COVID-19 Helpline. Since administering our first COVID-19 vaccine on January 13, 2021, we have administered 4,403 vaccines and offered over a dozen community pop-up vaccine clinics and education events. In partnership with CVS, we have offered COVID-19 testing to community members of all ages. There was not a single clinic day in 2021 that a patient with acute COVID-19 symptoms was not able to receive care from a Good Sam provider. We did this because it is what our patients and our community deserve. And we enter 2022 ready to do the same.

Your Good Work By The Numbers

When I joined The Good Samaritan Health Center in May 2021 as the new Chief Development Officer, I was immediately struck by two things.

First, this Center runs a lean financial ship. The number of high-quality healthcare services we provide and the volume of patient encounters we see day in and day out should translate to astronomical dollars spent. It's no secret that healthcare is expensive. The complexity of the healthcare needs of an underserved and marginalized patient population and an ongoing pandemic only adds to those costs. Good Sam manages to navigate those complexities excellently and on a budget. Our leadership has been wise to invest in highly skilled and passionate staff, who are here to serve our neighbors well above all, which has translated to the ability to stretch every donated dollar to provide many multiples more worth of care.

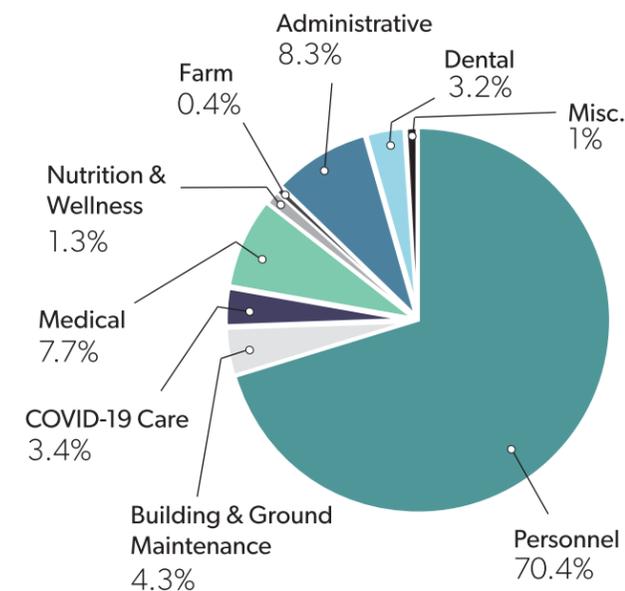

The second striking truth about Good Sam is that we have the most generous and thoughtful supporters I have ever encountered. They are made up of individuals and organizations that simply want to know how they can help to continue the good work, who often show up with a gift without even having to be asked. As a fundraiser, I am often asked about the sustainability of a program once a grant or pledge is fulfilled. The truth is our work is inherently unsustainable. We are a nonprofit: we will never be able to continue this care on our own. The beauty of what I have experienced so far at Good Sam is that our donors continuously remind me, in word and deed, that we don't have to. Thank you, from the bottom of my heart, for that support. I hope you feel proud of the facts and figures on these pages. Lives changed, hurts healed, and unyielding care provided by an organization with integrity... and all of it is only possible because of your generosity.
